Question Number One: (25 points)

Read the text and do the tasks below:

The results of a new poll show that financial problems have taken over from the environment as the main concerns for young people. The survey asked over 12,000 people aged between 14 and 18 what they were most worried about. The clear 'winner' was 'finding a job', while the environment was only the seventh greatest worry. This compares with similar polls in the last fifteen years, when environmental worries came first.

One of the poll's organisers commented that the results demonstrated a clear change in attitude. 'It's not just that getting a job is the main worry,' he said. 'Also included in the top six worries were getting into debt (6th) and passing exams (4th=). I am convinced that there's a connection. Because of changes in the job market, there is more and more pressure on young people nowadays to pass exams and go on to university in the hope of finding a good job. Rising university fees make it inevitable that many students graduate from university with huge debts.'

Other concerns mentioned by large numbers of young people also tended to be personal rather than social, including worries about relationships (2nd), health (3rd) and 'fitting in with peers' (4th=).

Annette Coleman, director of the Green Earth organisation, said yesterday that she was 'disappointed, but not surprised' at the fall in the number of young people concerned about the environment. 'It's not that environmental concerns are less urgent than before – quite the opposite in fact. It's just that after decades of publicity on topics like climate change, so little has actually changed. A lot of people get the feeling that there's nothing we can do about it, and young people in particular tend to be impatient. Of course, the other thing is that in times of economic difficulty, people are more likely to focus on worries that are more immediate and have an impact on their daily lives.'

Communication in global business must be fast and efficient, but also it must be effective. People who do business all over the world need good work relationships. These kind of relationships usually develop when people see each other every day. This is not always possible for teams with members all over the world. Fortunately, new communication tools make it possible for team members to get to know one another and share ideas online. People who cannot meet face-to-face can still collaborate by using video chat programs such as Skype or Face Time. These programs allow people to see each other when they talk. They can see facial expression-a smile or a frown-and look at documents together. They can also use social networking Sites, such as Facebook. Social networking websites allow groups of people to share information, interests, and ideas on the internet. The main focus of these sites was originally social interaction, but now businesses are using them for professional collaboration as well.
